

- The issue that we had of the flex alerts and then the rolling blackouts, rolling brownouts last summer due to -- that was largely due to forces well beyond our control, it was -- it was not due to a lack of renewable energy being available.
- It was largely due to a lack of nonrenewable energy being available.
- So, those issues are being looked at the system operator, which is the independent organization that operates the electric grid.
- And they do all the scheduling and all that stuff.
- So, there's been a lot of really technical kind of stuff going before the board and other than those kind of higher-level items I'm happy to answer any questions beyond that, but that's kind of the high-level information.
